

Dulwich Society Local History Group Terms of Reference

We are volunteers researching and sharing Dulwich's rich local history. We are a friendly forum for people interested in our local history. We research local events, people, buildings, streets and organisations and aim to make the results of our research relevant and accessible by sharing it with our members and the wider community in a variety of ways:

- we write articles for the Society's publications, its website and for other publications;
- we run a Twitter account @DulwichHistory;
- we give talks which are often recorded and made available via our YouTube channel;
- we guide local walks;
- we produce information boards;
- we contribute to local community events such as the Dulwich Festival;
- we answer enquiries from our members and the general public;
- we curate exhibitions;
- we liaise with relevant archives;
- we recommend appropriate historical projects for funding by the Society.
